

Eastern Mining d.o.o. which since 2017 on the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina, specifically the Municipality of Vares, is working intensively to obtain all permits for the opening of mines and plants in which, in addition to lead, zinc and barite concentrate, will extract silver and gold concentrate from the ore.

The rapid development of technology, including automation, digitization, and electrification, is fundamentally changing mining operations. How can these new technologies help the mining sector to be environmentally sustainable?

The serious business of this international company requires a serious commitment to preserving, improving and protecting the environment. " Our experts from Eastern Mining are implementing detailed measures to rehabilitate the existing situation and improve the environment. From the very beginning, in the so-called phase of plant design, we started with the application of the best world practice in mining, and strictly follow the guidelines in the field of environment. The goal is to have an equally modern plant and facility in Vares ", says Vildana Mahmutovic, Environmental and Social Management Manager at Eastern Mining d.o.o. Mahmutovic adds that mining will now be based on modern technologies and methods, which aim to minimize the negative impact on the environment. In the current phase, as we call them, of investigative works, we are also working on the rapid rehabilitation of the terrain where the sampling is taking place. Eastern Mining d.o.o. also plans to use a number of engineering solutions aimed at reducing noise emissions into the environment, wastewater treatment, and preventing emissions of pollutants into the air, water and soil. All the efforts made by the company Eastern Mining are taken seriously by BiH authorities, which recently approved the expansion of the concession area for this company, so that the total area covered by the concession now amounts to 4,078 ha, or 40.78 km².

" Transparency of information, good relations with stakeholders and the local community are the foundations that enable easier work and faster business progress. We are convinced that the technologies we have at Eastern Mining doo can proudly say that we make every effort to make environmental protection and environmentally sustainable development one of our basic business priorities ", added Adnan Teletovic, Executive Director of Eastern Mining doo. As part of the entire development project, the Vares Information Center was opened, where all those interested can find useful information about the project.
